(U) We'd like to give you a sense of what the new SID leaders have been doing in their first weeks on the job.

(U//FOUO) Since April 21st, MG Quirk and Charlie Meals have already visited a number of SID organizations to meet members of the workforce and become better acquainted with both mission and human resources topics. On April 22nd, they toured several Customer Relationships (S1) offices, including:

- Requirements Analysis Center
- Military Integration
- Customer Response
- Customer Account Management
- SINIOs (SIGINT National Intelligence Officers)
- National Tactical Integration

(U//FOUO) This was followed up by a 24 April visit to Data Acquisition (S3) offices, including:

- Current Operations Division
- Special Source Mission Management
- Systems Analysis
- Commercial Technology

(U//FOUO) MG Quirk and Charlie Meals also plan on visiting elements of Analysis & Production (S2) in the near future. They were very impressed by their visits and greatly enjoyed the opportunity to meet directly with the workforce--something they hope will happen regularly.

(S//SI) The SID Director and Deputy Director have also met with NSA leadership outside of SID, such as the Acting General Council, Vito Potenza; the Principal Director for Foreign Affairs, [REDACTED]; and the Senior Acquisition Executive, Paul Schneider. MG Quirk even engaged in some international dialogue, namely a discussion with Mr. [REDACTED] the Deputy Director of the Norwegian Intelligence Service's Collection Division (the Norwegian equivalent to NSA).
