(U) Here's a letter about the most recent "Speak Easy" column: on take-away documentation for briefings.

From: anonymous

(U//FOUO) [REDACTED] suggests that it is more efficient to post things on the web. My response is... if only everyone had a webmaster at their disposal! Is there a corporate Agency office where one can go to have someone create and regularly update a website? I've been wondering this for a while.

(U) DC6M2 responds:

(U//FOUO) There is an office, Corporate Web Solutions, DC6M2, that will design and host your site in their Sitepro content management tool. Sitepro allows users to keep their content current via a web interface without having to know html. Visit the DC6M2 web site for more details:
