(C) Register now: the Global Network Analyst (GNA) Intern Program is holding an analytic showcase on July 23rd to highlight just a few of the SIGINT Development achievements of its members.

(S//SI) The Global Network Analyst (GNA) Intern Program is a two-year development program designed to produce a cadre of analysts who are both target and technology saavy. All GNA interns have a technical background in computer science or networking.

(S//SI) After completing a 6-month tour in a TOPI, interns choose two additional tours from other S2 target offices, the Target Analysis Center, Cryptologic and Exploitation Services SIGDEV elements (including the Office of Target Pursuit and the Network Analysis Center), Tailored Access Operations, Special Source Operations, and the Special Collection Service.

(TS//SI) On 23 July from 1000-1100 in 9A135 (Headquarters Building), the first GNA Intern Showcase will feature two presentations demonstrating analytic attacks against emerging technologies. ▮▮▮▮▮▮▮▮▮ will discuss the passive exploitation of wireless networks and ▮▮▮▮ ▮▮▮▮ will share results from analysis he performed to tie together passive and active collection against an emerging technology.

(U//FOUO) You can register via the " go showcase " webpage. Due to security constraints, this showcase is US-only.
